Nashville City Cemetery is the oldest continuously operated public cemetery in the city. In 1820, the Mayor of Nashville purchased four acres of land located "on the plains, south of town, for its burying ground." Since opening in January 1, 1822, there have been 20,000 interments in the City Cemetery of every race, religion, and economic status.

The cemetery is home to more than 300 trees, lining streets named for trees and shading graves for nearly two centuries. Recent restorations included repairing grave stones, removing dead wood, and planting 100 trees. The Master Gardeners maintain the flower gardens with plants that would have been found in the cemetery right before the Civil War.

The Cemetery operates under the supervision of the Metro Parks Department and the Metro Historical Commission. For more information visit www.thenashvillecitycemetery.org.
